On the Second Sunday of Easter in the Jubilee Year 2000, at the Mass for the canonization of St. Faustina Kowalska, Pope Saint John Paul II proclaimed to the world that “from now on throughout the Church this Sunday will be called Divine Mercy Sunday”. The devotion born in the vision experienced by the Polish nun, St. Faustina, has spread to the whole Catholic world in the form of the Divine Mercy chaplet.

Everything Jesus did for us in His Passion, Death and Resurrection was one great act of mercy toward us sinners. That is well documented in the New Testament. While other books were given to us for information, the Bible was given to us for transformation. It finds us where we are and helps take us where we ought to be. For that: Praised be Jesus Christ!

The main point for all of us today is to remember all that Jesus did for us, and to highlight God’s perennial posture of mercy toward us sinners. That is all well documented in the book that we call “the bible”. No matter how you read it, on paper or on electronic screen, the truth in it will set you free. Don’t be one of the many Christians who expect the world to respect a book they neglect. It documents real mercy like no other.
