Sometimes prayer is easy – times of thanksgiving, times before a big test or an important appointment, times of fear and anxiety, times of mourning for persons we love as they near death. At other times, prayer is difficult – when we are angry at the crazed, violent or heartless behavior of someone or when we know we are supposed to pray for those we consider our enemies. Easy or difficult, we know we have an obligation to pray. It springs from the fact that there is a God who created us and we are here on earth as His creatures. It is an obligation that derives from love, however, rather than law. It is worth the time and effort it takes for that reason alone.

Prayer seems difficult sometimes, possibly because of certain attachments we make to it such as kneeling as the only correct posture for prayer or that it is a must that prayer be done early in the morning. However, the truth is that prayer may be offered at any time, but make it at the best time for you. And do it at the same time every day. The main thing is for all of us to be praying people and to persevere.

The greatest form of prayer is praise. We do not ask anything for ourselves, but simply praise God for who He is and all He has done for us.
