It is tempting to wish that our faith in God enables us to have an unflinching trust that God will take us where we want to be. It would free us from dithering with decisions, vacillating and second guessing. Only that wouldn't be faith because it would be our script we'd have God carrying out. Faith in God surrenders the script. It also surrenders the outcome. Faith is unpredictable, like good novels that twist and turn and keep us in suspense. If novels are well written, they keep us up long into the night. On the other hand, we like our lives quite the opposite. The appearance of the unpredictable tends to unsettle and undo our living. We presume that good lives, unlike a good novel, are interesting and engaging but always deliberately focused and free of unwarranted surprises. And so we expect good novels and good lives to be like the tracks of the railroad – parallel, but never touching or crossing lest someone or something be derailed. Growth and change are always the result of conflict, of clashing visions that force adaptation. This is not to say that God writes tragedies and suffering into the script, but only that God uses all the unfolding twists and turns of the plot to bring the story to a divine conclusion.
