Sacrament of the Sick/Homebound

Anointing: Anytime upon request in the home of the sick. Please call the rectory.

Some things drop into our lives and we simply run with them. Summer vacation is like that. There is no need and certainly no desire to organize it for the sake of efficiency. Summer is better when it just happens: bike riding, softball on the school playground, swimming at the lake or shore, going for ice cream at dusk, catching fireflies at night, and a thousand other things that come together and make up summer.

There are other things, however, that drop into our lives but never go anywhere, except perhaps with a lot of prodding: going to school as a youngster, wearing braces, moving to a new city as a child, a close relative dying unexpectedly. We take these things in stride, mostly because there is no other way to take them.

God gives us five talents' worth of life, or two talents' worth or even one talent's worth, and with it enough energy to double it. Sometimes, though, God drops in when we'd rather be left alone, and so we try to bury God just because the situation doesn't look very life-giving to us. Yet it can be life-giving, like the weary routine of raising children or going to the same job we've been going to for the past twenty-five years, or taking care of an aging parent. Eventually we may find out that burying such life is more deadly than the risk of living it, and living it brings a higher yield than we could ever expect.

God will come stealing life as we know it. If, however, we pick it up and run with it at that point, perhaps something new can be born in us.
